Disability RMS Invited to Serve on International Claim Association Disability Committee

Assistant Vice President, Claims, Accepts Seat for 2010

WESTBROOK, Maine — Jan. 26, 2010 — Disability RMS, the nation's leading provider of turnkey disability risk management products and services, today announced that Tracey G. Zinck will serve as its representative on the Disability Committee of the International Claim Association. Zinck assumes the role effective immediately.

"The International Claim Association is committed to keeping its members apprised of current industry information, trends and best practices," said Chris Murphy, International Claim Association executive director. "We are very fortunate to have member companies who support our organization through active participation at the committee level and Tracey's background and experience are a wonderful complement to the talent that exists on our Disability Committee."

"I'm very pleased to represent Disability RMS on the International Claim Association's Disability Committee," noted Zinck. "This organization — and the Disability Committee in particular — provides a unique forum for consulting with colleagues and developing educational programs that support best practices which benefit both claimants and employers."

Zinck has more than 18 years of experience in the health and group disability insurance industry. She serves as Disability RMS assistant vice president, claims, and is responsible, in part, for the operational leadership of the claims organization. Prior to joining Disability RMS, Zinck held management positions with Anthem and Unum Reinsurance. Zinck earned her bachelor's degree, magna cum laude, from Quinnipiac College and received a Juris Doctor degree from the University of Bridgeport School of Law. She holds all required Third Party Administrator state licenses.

Founded in 1909, the International Claim Association provides a forum for its members to exchange information and further their knowledge of the insurance industry. Membership is comprised of life and health insurance companies, reinsurers, managed care companies, third party claims administrators, and Blue Cross and Blue Shield organizations worldwide. The International Claim Association strives to keep its members informed on new regulations and trends within the insurance claims industry through a variety of research, training, education and communications programs.
